– Where your now? – I’m in the place where we communicate. Turn around. Do you see this place? This is where I function. This is instead of the body. – Are you in the same place? – No. I have my own place – Where is it? What is its size? – Turn around and you’ll see. I’m everywhere around this place, but I have boundaries. Where are the boundaries of the place I’m in? – I don’t know – I’m in the event. Communication period is my boundaries. My boundaries are hidden within my body, while in your world my boundaries, specifically today, are limited by this room. The event takes place here. I participate in this event. It creates me. If someone watches through a slot in the curtains, I will broaden. Describe the place where I am. – You are in one of the worlds. What is a world? – A world is a world within a world among countless number of worlds, among which it is related to countless number of worlds, being within one world all together. A world consists of multitude of worlds. A world is a world within a world; this repeats endlessly. A world is a tonal, it is personality, it is the description of world. Everything else is nagual – Can a world be changed? – Yes – How? – One should create a second personality and learn how to set priorities in using areas of eyes – Is there anyone else in your world? – No, just me. – Aren't you bored there being alone? – Aren't you? – No, I'm not alone. There are other people in my world – There is only you in your world – So, who are others? – They all have their own worlds – Are we all alone? – Yes, but there are common worlds. Your common world is human one. It makes you similar
